

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.

Guidelines for Parade, Vendors or Performers.

Our community has changed, and families and children are part of our newer reality. As such, our Prides should be a place welcoming to them. We can proudly say this is a family friendly event that is open to everyone.

Not everyone may agree with these guidelines, but change is one of the few constants we all face, and times have challenged us to a new scenario.

These changes only apply to those who choose to be in the parade, choose to be part of vendor booths, choose to work or volunteer at Stonewall Pride, choose to be part of sponsor groups, or choose to perform on a stage or area on state or city property. A very small percentage of the nearly sixty thousand people at Stonewall Pride are affected by these changes. Those of us who choose to be part of the entertainment, offerings, and setup have an obligation to set the example and standards for our community who attend. We need to be mindful of our audience at all times.

These are guidelines to help everyone in the parade, vendor booths, or on State/City property while performing to understand what type of conduct or minimum dressing standards that apply to everyone equally. No one is singled out in these guidelines or in the enforcement of the guidelines. Please understand that it is hard to put into words all these topics that must be covered. We have done the best we can to use language that is widely understandable and hopefully not offensive to anyone.

1. No Nudity.
2. Lower genital area must be covered in the front and back. This is similar to a speedo or mid-rise bikini bottom.
3. For females, those presenting as females and those with prosthetic breasts, the top must cover completely the breasts. Fully across the top, bottom, and sides.
4. No Vulgarity or profanity or sexualized language.
5. No touching yourself or others in the genitals or in a sexualized way.
6. No dancing or movement in a sexualized way.
7. No sex toys, porn, near porn, or food /items shaped like, suggestive of, or mimicking genitals.